I respectfully ask the FCC to enforce the current ban on the F-word and nudity.
 I am strongly opposed to dropping the ban on the F-word, expletives, and nudity even if it is only "fleeting" and non-sexual. I do not use the F-word as I find it very offensive. I have appreciated the ban which has protected my viewing experience and allowed me to watch programs that I enjoy without the worry of seeing nudity or hearing inappropriate language. I don't want to see or hear any of it. The current standards of allowing the B-word and G-d-mn-t are highly offensive and I wish that they would be banned. I and my family discontinue watching programs that contain that type of language. I also do not watch programs that contain nudity. Not only do I believe these images to be inappropriate for me but they are COMPLETELY INAPPROPRIATE for children and adolescents.

Just because there is a section of the general population that uses that type of language and allows inappropriate nudity DOES NOT mean that the rest of the population should be subjected to it. IF they wish to view that type of programming, there are plenty of other network channels that will provide that type of viewing experience. Why take this ban away which provides the "cleaner, family friendly viewing" that everyone enjoys away when there are so many other networks like HBO, Cinemax, etc. that already provide and satisfy those parameters.

I believe that the majority of Americans support the current ban on the f-word and any type of nudity.

Furthermore, as a mother of four, I DO NOT want my son to be exposed to the naked female body on television. I DO NOT want my daughters to be exposed to it either as this type of exposure will have an adverse effect on our personal and religious beliefs and their could potentially affect their personal self esteem adversely.

My family and I live by the standard that when you are well groomed and modestly dressed, you can have a good influence on others and society especially since dress and grooming directly influence the way you and others around you act. I teach my children not to attend, view, or participate in anything that is vulgar, immoral, violent, or pornographic in any way. When we as a society move away from these standards, we kindle the destruction of the basic unit of society, the family, and devalue all of the most precious, decent, and beautiful things that make life worth living.

Do we want to have a society filled with people that are supportive of these base and vulgar values or would we rather have a society that is mainly focused on uplifting, positive, motivating behaviors that will help keep families intact and strengthen relationships? I want the latter. That is why I am completely against lifting the ban on the F-word and all types of nudity whether they are described as "fleeting and non-sexual" or not.
